Analysis

By looking at the differential (winners - unforced errors) we can see right away that this wasn't a great match for any of the players. Piia was in her first finals and it showed as Geneviève rolled with the punches but didn't try much on the offence side. Basically she let her opponent bury herself in errors. We would have liked to see Bousquet go more for the show as she is able to be much more aggressive and spectacular in singles. Of course she didn't have to and the end result is there to prove it but for the spectators....
